Gary Fleischman visited Twin Peaks holy ground in San Francisco (1st Holy Ground in USA) and discovered that it had been defaced by graffiti. Gary immediately jumped into action and called for volunteers who went with power snubbers, wire brushes and lots of hard work set about cleaning up the damage.

We got a good deal of it off, at least it doesn't stick out and feel invasive as it did before. See before and after pictures attached, as well as a picture of the group. It felt wonderful to give love to that rock where Father had stood, sat, and prayed.
