States have a compelling moral and social interest in the protection and promotion of the Family. Without the Family, societies cannot exist, let alone develop. As the Human Rights Council Resolution 26/11 recently emphasized, the family is not only “the natural and fundamental group unit of society”, but also the “natural environment for the growth and well-being of all it’s members”. The Unificationist response d be a strong confirmation of this self-evident truth, backed by scientific and academic research!
