The Universal Peace Federation (UPF) displayed their patriotic pride in the Irving 4th of July Parade last Saturday for the 10th year in a row. This year, their march signified taking a stance for one of their core beliefs, the sanctity of marriage in building world peace and the benefits of the two-parent family as the “school of love.”

Their efforts made it into the local Dallas Morning News online coverage, reminding us of how simple, yet profound it can be to get the message of traditional families into local news.
