

Absolute Obedience

I remember on some early tour, 1972ish, Father would make some pronouncement such as, "sisters! Cut your hair! Or don't wear turtlenecks! Or don't wear pants! Wear skirts!" not all at once of course, But inevitably this would be followed by Mother dressing in pants and a turtleneck for example, or Mrs. [Won Pok] Choi gasping, " sisters! Why did you all cut your hair?"

There was a lesson here that is later clarified by Fathers words that obedience doesn't mean to follow every rule, but to put ones whole heart into ones mission. I'm paraphrasing, but hopefully most know several such quotes.

We are a rare religion that teaches true equality of male and female and since we are so new to this, the first time ever we see a woman as Messiah , equal to man , it's no wonder were floundering to figure it out. But when we say True Parents that means Mother as well as Father, so anything done by her is equal.
