WFWP Austria gathered on 4 April 2018 in Vienna Seidengasse, under the umbrella of the 'Global Women's Peace Network', to see a documentary about North Korean music-students, who were performing music in Europe.

Renate Amesbauer, WFWP Austria president, welcomed everybody with a warm heart and introduced music teacher Isabella Krapf, who is also an Ambassador for Peace, as well as the director of the documentary Walter Wehmeyer.

First Isabella Krapf gave a fantastic music performance on her harmonica accompanied by a guitar and also a solo of Korean song. Isabella Krapf and Walter Wehmeyer briefly introduced the documentary, entitled 'What is life'.

The film is about North Korean music students that Ms Krapf had taught the harmonica, all the way through to their first performances in Europe. Through their talents and musical ambitions and their harmonica performances, the students could experience travelling in Europe for the first time. They also won many music competitions in Taiwan and North Korea. Ms Krapf shared her experience of passion from her work in North Korea as a harmonica music teacher. Through this peaceful cooperation the North Korean students could become a successful music group.

In the end, the director Mr Wehmeyer also expressed his appreciation to Ms. Krapf for her work and cooperation to create a successful documentary.

Many guests were also deeply moved to see the talented North Korean students, their music performance was very precious to them. After the documentary the guests were invited for a special buffet prepared by WFWP.
