

CARP Europe and Middle East Public Online Event - The Role of Students

Martine Masner
November 13, 2020

The basis for all educational programmes:
Intercultural dialogues is necessary to strengthen solidarity and understanding among different peoples.
Who can better create links to other people than students who are interested in learning from other cultures?

Now is the time to move towards a new global idea

THE ROLE OF STUDENTS

The contribution of today's youth in building a better world

Emilio Asti professor at the University of Milano and the University Complutense of Madrid

Friday, November 13th
7pm CET via Zoom

REGISTER HERE
<https://www.carp-europe.com>

The CARP public online event took place on Friday, November 13. This event is meant for new guests. The presentation was given by Prof. Emilio Asti from the University of Milano, Italy.

The topic was The Role of Students and the contribution of today's youth in building a better world.

Prof. Asti exposed the limitation of today's educational system where both, teachers and students, are struggling and experience their limitations.

He explained that only together in unity with both professors and students we can find solutions and move toward a new global ideal.

We need to unite all kinds of people, from different backgrounds and faiths.

He also emphasized that in any case we need to first change ourselves, and he promoted events of our founder Dr. Hak Ja Han Moon like Peace Starts with Me and the Rallies of Hope!