

More on Perfection - No one can know if I am perfect

Anne-Marie Mylar

January 2, 2015

No one can know if I am perfect, I am the only one who can tell.

Today I am in tune with my conscience. I have no conflict inside myself. I can sense the presence of God and heavenly spirits around me.

I am not as perfect as I will be tomorrow but today I am just fine. I will make mistakes today, possibly. But that is not because of a selfish heart or lack of wanting to serve someone else, it will, simply because it is today.

Tomorrow I will not make that mistake. I will have grown one more day.

The statement above does not speak about the author - It is simply stating some reflections about what perfection might be.

