

Heaven, a state of being

Anne-Marie Mylar

January 8, 2015

Heaven is a state of being and not an actual place either on earth or in the spirit world.

Heaven can be attained while still physically alive and of course at some point in the spirit world. Heaven is not a place that God is going to forbid us to enter if we have not accomplished things the way we should have.

The Heavenly state of being is just not attained unless one has made the effort to reach that state of mind and heart. God can only guide, counsel, prod, love, and support our effort to reach an Heavenly state of being - He cannot forbid - He created us with the ability to reach that state.