Campus Impact

Students are powerful. When students stand up, they make waves. When they stand together, they can change society.

Part of our mission is to stand for principled ideas on campus. Check out how local chapters did that this month:

On April 13th, CARP Las Vegas (pictured above) impacted over 142 people by bringing in guest speakers from around the country to speak on Building Intact Families in a Sexualized Culture for a full-day conference at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas (UNLV) campus.

They brought in Dr. Timothy Rarick (Professor at Brigham Young University-Idaho), Dr. Sandra Lowen LCSW, Lisa Thompson (Vice President of the National Center of Sexual Exploitation), and Melissa Holland (co-founder of non-profit Awaken) as guest speakers (pictured above). By working together with different organizations and standing together for a principled perspective, CARP impacts not just students or the campus, but also faculty, administrators, student government officers, and other leaders of the community.

On April 26th, CARP NJIT (pictured above) hosted their first campus impact event, titled Change Starts With Me to talk about how investing into improving relationships in the family improves your life. About 70 people came to their event. Read more about the event here.

On May 3rd, CARP Bay Area (pictured above) held their on-campus event titled Peace Starts With Me. Over 80 people came to hear Dr. Sandra Lowen LCSW talk about reconciliation and healing in relationships.

CARP has something worthwhile to share, and by working together and reaching out to our communities, we can show our campuses and our communities how living a principled lifestyle brings true fulfillment.
