Article 18 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights states that “everyone has the right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion.” However, not all nations protect people of faith and religious minorities equally. Last month, at a two-day International Religious Freedom Summit in Washington, DC led by co-chairs Ambassador Sam Brownback and Dr. Katrina Lantos Swett, testimonies were shared about religious persecution from around the world.

Join us to hear from three courageous women who attended the Summit in order to get their stories out to the international community and to solicit support in the US for their persecuted religious communities.

Sponsored by the International Media Association for Peace of Universal Peace Federation
