

CARP Halloween Party

Barcelona, Spain, 1. November 2013

From October 31 to November 1 there was a small Halloween party that has already become a tradition in the Barcelona's community .

This time it was held in the city of Barcelona in the Carp Centre located at Plaza de Sants and were 11 participants in total (counting with 4 staff).

The 31 of October the program started in the afternoon with a fun evening icebreaker. We painted our faces and welcomed everyone explaining the schedule and the motto which was "Fear is an option." Then we finished the day with a scary movie.

The following day took place the innermost part of the program with the approach of not being afraid to be yourself based on the theme, as we think one of the problems the second generation have is usually the lack of self-confidence, so we wanted to remember the value that each of them have and their strength to follow ahead when there are difficulties.

The day started with an hdh section followed by breakfast and a walk to Montjuic. After lunch, we watched a really inspiring video together related to the claim and continued with some debate.

The last activity was to write in a few bottles our qualities and fears. The fears written with pencils wanted to represent something real that each one of us has but should not be as strong as our qualities (written in pen). At the end we all end up writing qualities in others bottles.

Although it was very short, we believe it was good to give the opportunity to second generation to enjoy and learn together as many cannot come during the weekends making it difficult to stay connected with each other.
