

CARP Holds Japanese Culture Evening in Ulyanovsk, Russia

Yuriy Gavrilin - January 19, 2019

On January 19, the local chapter of CARP in the city of Ulyanovsk hosted an evening of Japanese culture.

Eighteen guests came to the event, of whom half were first-time guests. An employee of the Radius center for people with limited health attended, as did several residents of this center.

After a presentation about CARP and the winter program in St. Petersburg, a number of Japanese missionaries who are visiting Ulyanovsk gave a demonstration of their nation's culture and invited members of the audience to take part in a traditional Japanese dance. The young Japanese also led the guests in competitive games before inviting them to sample typical Japanese cuisine.

There was a feeling of unity among all present. Some of the guests stayed longer, and we had a game of imagination. Finally there was a disco.
