

"Kaleidoscope of Cultures" Festival Held in Yekaterinburg, Russia

Yuriy Gavrilin - January 27, 2019

On January 27, Yekaterinburg members held an interethnic festival called "Kaleidoscope of Cultures." Among the performers were a group of young Japanese missionaries and the Second Generation children's studio named "Rays of Goodness."

The children were very worried, as this was their first time to perform on a big stage. Previously, they had performed in front of their parents and for the guests at Family Festivals, and once on Mother's Day at school. However, everything went fine.

Representatives of Ukraine, Georgia, Ossetia, Bashkortostan, Mari El and Udmurtia sang and danced. In the finale, all the guests were invited to attend the next Blessing Festival.
