

YSP Russia at schools and colleges: importance of environment and voluntary work

YSP Russia continues this month with it's many educational events for young people!

This included being invited to speak to children from elementary schools to colleges about the importance of looking after the environment and voluntary work.

YSP volunteers were united to a meeting with Roberto D'Agostino, the Honorary Consul of Italy in Yekaterinburg. A wonderful opportunity to be inspired and encouraged.

We hope that through all of these activities we can encourage young people to continue fostering their youthful enthusiasm into powerful initiatives that will create sustainable change for their generation!
