

WFP Thailand holds youth training program to build a network of local youth

Kamoltip Phayakvichien
August 13, 2022

From August 12-13, 2022, WFP Thailand hosted 70 participants for a 2-day youth training event.

The purpose of this training was to build a network of local youth and, through encouraging active participation between them and organizations, empower them to develop their potential through cultivating their intellectual, emotional and problem solving skills. Through this, the hope is that they may become leaders capable of accepting ethnic diversity and fostering peaceful coexistence in their communities.

The training included important lecture content on the topics of youth development, becoming resilient to problems that often arise among youth and introducing principles of living that are good, clear and lead to success in life. The participants learned about the cause of human suffering and the path of peace pioneered by the late Reverend Sun Myung Moon, co-founder of WFP alongside his wife, Dr. Hak Ja Han Moon.

WFP Thailand hoped to inspire the participants through the training. Consisting of high school and university students from a variety of religions, the participants enjoyed the activities aimed at transcending differences and building good relationships with one another and sang songs of common peace. The atmosphere was filled with happiness, smiles, and laughter.

Through the successful training, participants learned how to live a good life, protect themselves from temptations and were inspired by the path of peace modeled by Reverend Sun Myung Moon.

