This is probably the first Unification church center in Montpelier, Vermont.

In early Summer 1973 I had the privilege of finding it and living there, and preparing everything for the arrival of the team.

At that time I was in the New England team led by Ewing Ang, which consisted of about 10 Americans (led by Jeffrey G. Tallakson and as many Austrians (led by Joachim Baum - a brother from Germany).

The house belonged to the Blake family and had a main entrance and a side entrance (right in the picture).

The Blake family lived in the main house and the side house was big enough for the team.
