A ceremony marking the foundation of the Inter-Denominational Christian Association was held on November 7, 1966, at A-seo-won, in Jung district of Seoul.

This was the result of the Christianity-based interdenominational activities that had been held since 1965.

True Father said, "If a hundred members become people central to creating harmony, they can be remembered by Heaven.

To bring about harmony, interdenominational activities must be carried out to a degree where one would even fall into debt for it." When first established, it was launched under the name the Christian Inter-Denominational Movement Headquarters but was renamed the Inter-Denominational Christian Association eight years later in October 1974.
